1. Where are you from? Who introduced you to HBCUs?*

I was raised in Atlanta, GA. All throughout grade school we attended field trips to Alabama HBCUs and civil rights museums. I sat on Rosa Parks bus and visited the church where the four little girls were bombed. We learned about Martin Luther King attending Morehouse and visited his childhood house. We toured Auburn avenue. I attended band camp at Clark Atlanta University. We knew all great black people attend HBCUs, our teachers did and their importance to history.

2. Why did you choose an HBCU over a pwi?*

It's nothing like being around your own, the love, support, and lessons you receive to enter the real world. The opportunities are endless at an HBCU. You can attend college wherever but the solid foundation in undergrad at a HBCU will prepare you for life. You learn things there you can't learn anywhere else.

3. What is the story of your "experience" at Your HBCU given its heralded status as a stellar and prestigious institution?*

There are too many too share. From the opportunities they give to graduates to receive their masters like I did in 2016, write manuscripts, and prepare for publishing. All the experiences hungry in the UC and eating in the MSC breakfast, lunch, and dinner. All the jobs I've had on campus in library or auxiliary services with so much support. When I won senior homecoming queen in 2013 and everyone was hugging me and alumni will stop and talk to you for hours. The best days.

4. "First time" experiences at your HBCU?*

I was attending PVAMU homecoming before I attended college there. It is the biggest homecoming in the south. No other homecoming compares, so many alumni come to attend many events.

5. Who are the professors that have impacted your life in and out of the classroom? How did they do that?*

Dr. Bailey my advisor and professor who helped me to keep up with my classes and always gave hope to do whatever I dreamed. He said he worked in a kitchen washing dishes to pay his way through college and that we could do anything.

"Working in your field will help you to see how you can use your purpose in life."

6. What is your process when you are going through a hardship that you have never faced before?

Trust God and believe he is faithful. Attend church no matter what because he is always there for you.

7. When and how did you discover your passion in life?

Working in your field will help you to see how you can use your purpose in life. Currently working for the state I've learned so much and it goes beyond my field into counseling and nursing. I can go back to school beyond a masters for anything to get the qualifications to help even more.
