1. Where are you from? Who introduced you to HBCUs?*

I am originally from East Chicago, Indiana but I was raised in Suffolk, Virginia. Nobody in my family went to college before me, so I didn't know what an HBCU was until one year prior to me attending Central State University.

2. Why did you choose an HBCU over a pwi?*

When I finally understood the rich history HBCU's carried, I wanted to be a part of that. I believed that if I was a part of the legacy, I would gain the proper knowledge to create my own working legacy. When I went on a tour to Central State University, I could tell how family oriented everyone was. What really sold me was the dedication from the professors. Watching them teach and give individual help to the students led me to believe they cared about the student succeeding.

3. What is the story of your "experience" at Your HBCU given its heralded status as a stellar and prestigious institution?*

The story of my experience at my HBCU is Leadership transformation and Revolutionary Enthusiasm. So many times we forget the essence of who we are as students. Central State constantly reminds me that the leader I am being transformed into is preparing me for my future as an educator.

4. "First time" experiences at your HBCU?*

I actually have a lot of first experiences. My favorite is when I got to travel to Alabama for a game. Although we lost, our school had so much spirit. It was freshmen year and I enjoyed watching it.

5. Who are the professors that have impacted your life in and out of the classroom? How did they do that?*

Dr. Latson. She goes beyond what she really has to just to ensure that we are secure in the knowledge we gain. She is always making herself available to the students. As a future educator, this simple thing spoke volumes for me. It raised the standard for me to always question myself to say "Did I do enough for my student? Was this something that they could carry on in life? Was I enough?"
